

Designer Toilet Tissue Storage Holder

ABSTRACT

A free-standing interchangeable toilet tissue storage holder that is constructed of leather or fabric in such a manner to provide means of disassembling the toilet tissue storage holder for the purpose of interchanging different designs or for disassembling to clean the textile components. It is an advantageous and attractive means of storing toilet tissue while offering design changeability. The holder provides a partially transparent cover, centrally located, on top of the cover to permit ease of identifying the contents without physically lifting the cover. The handy cover grip is located on the cover to permit ease of gripping to selectively open or close the cover. A pocket located in the rear to store natural herbs to neutralize odours. Pegs at the bottom end of the toilet tissue storage holder prevents direct contact with the floor.